TRACK SELECTION

TRACKS:

Crisis Intervention and Advocacy for Survivors

Presentation or workshop submissions to the Intervention and Advocacy for Survivors track should describe efforts to provide resources to survivors of sexual assault and to the advocates and interventionists who serve them.

Campus Communities

Presentation or workshop submissions to the Campus Communities track should describe prevention, intervention, advocacy, or policy efforts in communities on college or university campuses.

NSAC 2013 Call for Proposals

Law and Policy

Presentation or workshop submissions to the Law and Policy track should describe efforts to engage law makers, policy makers, and law enforcement in productive ways for the benefit and safety of survivors of sexual assault. In addition, it may include useful strategies in applying existing law to support survivors and protect their rights.

Prevention

Presentation or workshop submissions to the Prevention track should describe efforts to engage communities in the prevention of sexual assault, with an emphasis on primary prevention. Workshop proposals should support the needs of local grantees from the Rape Prevention and Education program of the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. Proposals should draw on the best available research and / or prevention practices.

Wellness and Self-Care

Presentation or workshop submissions to the Wellness and Self-Care track should describe trauma-informed alternative healing modalities, holistic wellness, and embodied healing approaches that can advance the overall wellness and self-care of both survivors and professionals, advocates, and volunteers working in the sexual assault movement.

*19. Select the track that is most appropriate for your proposal:

- Crisis Intervention and Advocacy for Survivors
- Campus Communities
- Law and Policy
- Prevention
- Wellness and Self-Care
